THE WAYS OF THE RICH.

Detective Seymore of San Francisco has just recovered a judgement against Mrs. Orlich for $11,000. She admitted the service performed and acknowledged the price agreed upon but refused payment on the ground that there was no written agreement. The court thought the defense was trivial and gave the plaintiff judgement for the entire amount.

Society women with millions are the hardest people in the world to get a cent from. Mrs. George Gould never pays a dressmaker unless she is sued. Society women in New York run thousands in bills to their dressers and slide off to Europe in their unpaid for finery and when they come back dispute the claims and make the people they owe go into court and collect.

One would think that pride would revolt at the exposure of their dishonesty, but it does not.

Mrs. Leland Standford deliberately refused payment to a Los Angeles artist for accepted work, on the grounds that there was no written contract.

Stanford made a bargain for pictures for the University to the extent of $17,000 in the presence of three other people, his wife being one. The artist executed the work and the pictures were accepted and delivered. Stanford died and the claim was presented in due form. Mrs. Stanford who ran a university where the high civic virtues were supposed to be taught, repudiated the claim on the grounds that there was no written evidence of indebtedness. The law department of the university taught that.

As Mrs. Stanford repudiated the claim she said with a self satisfied smile, "My attorneys would have very little regard for my judgement as a business woman if I paid that claim." Such are the ways of the rich.

A most fiendish state of affairs exists in a portion of the tenderloin of New York where negro landlords hold white females in immortal slavery.

Upon this subject Rev. Madison C. Peters writes:

The laws are not enforced because rich men, in their unscrupulous greed for gain, are deriving large revenues from the brothels. In God's name and for the sake of the community, let a list be published of the men and women in the large cities who own the buildings in which these terrible things flourish. Let the masks of lying respectability be torn from these men and women, some of them society leaders and church pillars. Talk of tainted money—not only is the money tainted, but the man who rents his buildings for these dives has the taint of the dives on himself.
